

Architect Henry Hill launches boyhood dream on a stage platform

By AL EISNER

WHEN THE HOUSE lights dim and the orchestra begins to play the familiar overture to Puccini's Madame Butterfly next Friday, Jan. 6, at the Hidden Valley Theater, the audience will be seated around a set designed by Carmel architect Henry Hill.

It is a coup for the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble and the fulfillment of a lifelong dream for Hill. "I originally wanted to be a stage designer, but went to school during the Depression — the nearest thing was architecture," Hill said.

"I've always loved theater," Hill said. "Opera is the most extraordinarily civilized art form. It's a total experience using music, drama, theater, light."

Is it unusual for an architect to do stage design? "Too often," said Hill, "the architect is totally uninformed about art and music. He has no idea of the world he lives in." Hill recalled that the San Francisco Symphony was in deep financial trouble when he was practicing in the city. "I was in charge of raising money from architects. Lawyers gave 98 per cent of the funds to keep the orchestra alive. Architects gave 1 per cent."

While architecture and stage design might seem unrelated, there are basic similarities. "You have to provide for movement in space. With both you are dealing with problems of site, space, light, circulation and budget," Hill said.

His conviction was expressed early in his career as a teacher at Stanford University. "I wanted to stimulate young students of architecture by exposing them to opera. I'd pose the problem, for example, of how one would express the essence of Otello with light and space."

"OPERA IS THE most extraordinarily civilized art form," says architect Henry Hill. The Carmel resident has been engaged to do the stage design for the three operas comprising the 1978 season

Hill said he suggested that his students approach the answer through knowledge of the opera. "Why did the composer write it? What were the various stages of development of the story?" His students had to build something physical — stage for the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble. A former teacher of architecture at Stanford University, Hill recalls that he had his students build opera stage set models as a project to broaden their view of the world, models — to express visual impressions.

For final criticism of the students' work, Hill invited well-known figures like Kurt Adler, director of the San Francisco Opera, and Alfred Frankenstein and Alexander and because stage design and architecture are so closely related. Both deal with problems of "site, space, light, circulation and budget," said Hill.

Friday, Jan. 6, at the Hidden Valley Theater. Three levels are provided for the singers — an introductory level, the larger main level and a "high point" level, as seen above. A 20-by-50-foot polyurethane curtain, lighted from behind, will produce the feeling of what Hill describes as a "Japanese print."

A happy ending to truck accident and the blood drive that nearly failed

The driver of a Red Cross bloodmobile, en route from San Jose to a blood drive at the Carmel Holiday Inn, took a wrong turn Friday, lost his brakes and crashed 90 feet down Ocean Avenue into a brick wall.

Both the driver, Tom Cox, 20, of San Jose, and a passenger, nurse Hazel Fowle, also from San Jose, escaped injury. The truck suffered "moderate" damage, a spokesman for the California Highway Patrol said.

Officials of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Red Cross chapter delayed their pre-Christmas blood drive for 90 minutes while a second truck was dispatched from Central California Red Cross headquarters in San Jose. The trucks haul medical devices used at blood drives and the personnel in San Jose feared they might have been harmed in the crash, said Jean D. Snow, speaking for the local chapter.

Despite the accident and delay, the drive netted 103 pints of blood. "The turnout was real good," Mrs. Snow said.

Cox was driving southbound on Highway 1 when he apparently became confused, Mrs. Snow said. "The map said there was a stop light at Ocean Avenue and to continue on. He must have thought he should go down Ocean," she said.

The Carmel Holiday Inn is on Rio Road, which crosses Highway 1 about 1.5 miles farther south. The accident occurred at 8:40 a.m. Blood collections were scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

The brakes on the truck failed because of an apparent leak in the hydraulic system, Mrs. Snow said. The truck finally came to rest at 3507 Ocean Ave., the home of T. C. Han.

Red Cross officials organized the blood drive to replenish supplies depleted by heavy use during the holidays. Mrs. Snow said the rise in auto accidents during the Christmas season puts a drain on blood supplies in the region.

Rotary Yule party was festive event

A festive prelude to Christmas took place in the Cypress room of the Holiday Inn where members of the Carmel Valley Rotary Club, their wives and children gathered for the club's annual Christmas party.

Santa arrived during the dinner party with gifts. The recipients included Tony Willemsen, the president, Chuck Strathmeyer, secretary, and Gerry Tarsitano, treasurer.

Barbara Nelson donates profits

"An old oak leaf cluster" to Mid-Valley resident Barbara Nelson, whose year-round craft project once again earned a meaningful contribution to Barbara's chosen charity — Planned Parenthood.

This creative individual has learned the art of quilling, a specialty of French nuns who made tree decorations from curled shaped paper. She also fashions miniature pine cones into Little Red Riding Hoods; clothespins into toy soldiers; filberts into Bavarian characters; and decorates walnuts to resemble decorative strawberries.

Last year, the sale of her handiwork netted $70 for the organization with which she did volunteer work in Tucson, Ariz., Palo Alto and now the Pacific Grove chapter. Pre-Christmas sales this year assured the project of an even larger Christmas gift.

Women's club greets new year on Wednesday

Carmel Valley Women's Club members officially will greet the new year with a luncheon meeting on Wednesday at the Holiday Inn on Rio Road. Cocktails will be served at noon and the luncheon will follow at 1 p.m., according to Mrs. George Toole, the luncheon chairman.

Members are urged to attend the business meeting which follows. The discussion topic is updating the club's bylaws.

Reservations are needed by Saturday. If members of the telephone committee have been unable to reach you, phone them with the number in your party. They are Shirley Sargent, 625-2731; Nellie Mirani, 659-2454; and Vera Stokes, 659-4286.

Reservations due for Hidden Valley party

Begin the new year on a note of elegance in the setting provided by Saks Fifth Avenue at the New Year's Eve party planned by the Friends of Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

The public is invited to the party which is a benefit for the student musicians who are presenting a season of operatic performances at the Hidden Valley Theater in the Valley.

A buffet dinner, enticing door prizes donated by local merchants, rosebud corsages for the ladies and champagne for all capped by entertainment by the singers of the Hidden Valley ensemble and dancing until 1 a.m. should make it a memorable evening.

For reservations and further information, please phone Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Nielsen back from Asia

Returning to the states this week from a volunteer missionary assignment in the Philippines was Valley resident Paul Nielsen, who was approached by a missionary friend last summer to go to the islands to help establish a school of agriculture in conjunction with an Assembly of God Bible School and the Far East Broadcasting Corporation.

Nielsen, an authority on horticulture and a noted landscape gardener who has instructed classes at Monterey Peninsula College, laid groundwork for the ambitious project by conferring with officials in Samara and Manila and hiking in to explore the back country donated to the school for crops. He met with the president of the Philippines to request assistance with funding for equipment with which to build roads into the remote area.

Gardeners see miniatures

"Christmas in miniature" was enjoyed by members of the Carmel Valley Garden Association whose Christmas party was hosted this year at the Encina Drive home of Sally and Bob Brandt. The couple, noted for their delightful Lilliputian creations, had tiny scenes depicting the holidays as well as their extensive collection of Christmas folk art displayed in every room of their home.

Committee members assisting with the holiday brunch were Lynn Smith and Betsy Shea. A gift exchange highlighted the party.

The first meeting of 1978 will be Thursday, Jan. 12, at 8 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School. "Gardens of Early California" will be the topic of guest speaker Kent Seavey, Monterey County historical coordinator. Guests are welcome to join the gardeners for the lecture, slides and refreshments.

Singer aids cancer patient

Miracles still occur at Christmas and one of the most touching during this holiday season had a little help from Valleyite Paul Anka, the singer, who learned of the wish of a terminally ill cancer patient from Walnut Creek to spend Christmas in Denver with her daughter.

Doctors had determined the only thing keeping Eleanor Evans, 38, alive was the desire to see her daughter again. The patient, a Contra Costa County probation officer, is divorced and has no relatives living in California.

Necessary medical equipment for her trip was donated by David Friedman, administrator of Aero Medical Services, but he was unable to find a plane to transport Mrs. Evans until the well-known entertainer heard the story on a San Francisco radio newscast and offered his private jet.

Buckeye 4-H Club presents activities update

Buckeye 4-H scribe Kim Parham sent an update on the activities of their busy club:

A committee from the club marched with rabbits, goats, sheep and dog projects in the Santa Fly-In parade. Those participating were Michele Brackenrich, Kim Parham, Tricia Ward, Teresa Paddock, Stefie Parham and Sandra Pryer. They were joined by Boronda Club representatives Heidi and Fawn Nichol森 and Troy Canham.

Boronda 4-H hosted Buckeye 4-H with a Christmas party which included candy-filled pinatas, games and refreshments.

The next activity for the group will be an ice skating party.

The river is revived

FOR THE FIRST time in two years, water flowed down the river. Again, worries arose about construction near the river banks. Note the home at the left. (George T. C. Smith photo)

IN ONE GRADUAL flow, the Carmel River slowly began to empty at the beach over the weekend. Bulldozers sent in Friday by the State Parks and Beaches Department parted the sand in anticipation of the first flow from the river since June 1975. This view also shows sea spray (behind home in the center) sent skyward by the impact of high surf and strong winds that buffeted the Carmel area. Rainfall topped the 4.75-inch mark on Monday night, when .77 inch fell into the rain gauge at the Carmel Public Works Department yard. The flow was triggered when waters held behind Los Padres and San Clemente dams reached the dam crests and spilled into the riverbed. (George T. C. Smith photo)

ADVERTISE IN THE OUTLOOK

Put these tips and some spare fuses near your fuse box.

With a flashlight, they may help should your lights go out.

Be Prepared. Know where your fuse boxes or circuit breakers are located. Locate the main switch box—usually near the spot where the PG&E electric service wires connect to your house, or near your PG&E electric meter. Locate any additional fuse box or boxes—usually in a closet or utility room. Keep spare fuses handy.

Check the Neighbors. If your lights should go out, check to see if other homes in your neighborhood have lights. If the power is off in your home only, you may have a blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker.

Determine the Cause. Blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers are often caused by having too many lamps or appliances connected to one outlet or circuit. Another possibility is a defective cord on a lamp or appliance. To check, unplug all lamps or appliances on the affected circuit, looking for defective plugs or cords while doing so. Replace the blown fuse or reset the tripped circuit breaker, following the procedures given below. Then plug each lamp or appliance back in one at a time. A defective one or an overload will cause the fuse to blow, or circuit breaker to trip, again.

To Replace a Fuse. First turn the main switch to "OFF." Make sure that your hands are dry and that you are standing on a dry surface. Look for the "blown" fuse; the "window" may be blackened, or there may be a visible gap in the fuse element. Replace the blown fuse with one of the proper amperage rating, usually one of not more than 30 amps. Never use a penny or other metal object to "bridge" the blown fuse, as this could cause a house fire. Turn the main switch to "ON." If only part of the lights in the house come on, this may indicate that a circuit breaker has tripped, or a fuse in a branch fuse box has also blown. Check these fuses in the same way you did at the main switch. Branch box fuses have a maximum rating of 15 or 20 amps.

Cartridge Fuses. Be sure the main switch is "OFF" while you are changing cartridge fuses. You won't be able to visually tell exactly which cartridge fuse is blown. In this case, test by safely replacing each fuse with a new one until you find the blown fuse. Generally it's a good idea to replace all cartridge fuses in a circuit when one blows.

To Reset a Circuit Breaker. A tripped circuit breaker will probably be out of the "ON" position. Move the affected circuit breaker handle all the way to the "OFF" position (for some circuit breakers, a moderate pressure in the "OFF" direction is necessary to cause them to reset). Then, move the handle to the "ON" position. If the affected circuit breaker does not indicate that it has tripped (its handle has not moved from "ON" position), and you do not know which circuit breaker controls the affected circuit, try resetting all circuit breakers.

Some Added Safety Tips. Never plug in electrical appliances near bathtubs or basins. Never wash coffee pots or frying pans while they are still plugged in. Make sure that electric tools are properly grounded (with a 3-prong plug), or are of the U.L. approved "double-insulated" type. When you unplug an appliance, pull the plug—not the cord.

Still in the Dark? If you've followed all of these procedures and you're still in the dark, don't hesitate to call PG&E. We'll be happy to help.

Stage designer

Hill explained: "The opera is a poignant tragedy. The basic irony of the American sailor treating Butterfly like a toy with no idea of what he was doing. It's basically very simple and that is why people respond to it so much.

"I'm giving them a performing platform that has the feeling of a Japanese print. The background will not impose itself on what the singers are doing or on what the audience is receiving.

"Everything will be reduced to its simplicities. There will be an impression of the house. All sorts of shadows will be created by light—the shadows of cherry blossoms, for instance. The action will move from pools of light, constantly changing pools of light. It will never be intense, because the audience is not looking at a stage.

"They must be physically and emotionally involved at every instant. We have to aid and abet the director to help the audience let its imagination go. The garden floor becomes the house floor. A lot of things can be done with color and light. If we have a lot of shoji screens then what is left for the audience to do?"

Light will play an important part in the design of act three—the final scenes of the tragedy. The American sailor, Pinkerton, returns with his ship and Butterfly eagerly anticipates his return. "The warmth of her expectation will be done with light, the light," Hill continued.

"Cherry blossom boughs will convey the feeling of spring. Act one takes place in spring and act three is in the spring, three years later."

During the love duet, genuine flower petals will fall on the lovers from above. "We felt strongly that flowers should be used. The audience is too close to use confetti and we've got to be careful. Dropping things from an overhead catwalk can be distracting."

HILL SAID his design will stand or fall on the success of a 50-by-20-foot polyurethane curtain that will be lighted from behind.

"We'll convey the feeling of mist and of the Bay of Nagasaki with changing light. Instead of a painted mountain we are going to use a hanging mountain made of bamboo.

"It would be a lot easier for me to get ideas for the set design by copying pictures of Japanese houses and scenes from books. We have to tread very carefully to give the audience what it expects out of Madame Butterfly."

Hill is keenly aware of the physical problems of the Hidden Valley theater, but he regards them as stimulating challenges. "The 45-piece orchestra and the chorus consume a huge amount of space," he said. It is space that could be occupied by the stage or by precious seating capacity.

The acoustics, Hill said, are not a problem. "They're superb . . . almost too good."

How does Hill feel about his assignment? "I'm excited about working with all those talented young people. They have the intensity of devotion to what they believe in."

And so, too, does Henry Hill.

About

Henry Hill

Born in England of American parents, Carmel architect Henry Hill studied for a year at the University of London, was awarded a BA from UC Berkeley and his master's degree in architecture from Harvard University.

He opened his own office in San Francisco in 1946 and has lived in what he laughingly describes as "semi-retirement" in Carmel since 1970.

Among the 500 structures bearing the Henry Hill imprint are the U.S. Embassy housing building in Vienna; a palace in San Salvador; the Longshoreman's building at Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco (which features a copper dome and the largest single span ever done in reinforced concrete); and a chapel in Moline, Ill., commissioned by the owner of the John Deere Tractor Company and given to a public hospital. About 25 other buildings, mostly residential, were designed by Hill in the Monterey Peninsula area. He also worked in Quebec, Hawaii and on the East Coast.

He taught architecture regularly at Stanford University for 19 years, and at Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo. He also lectured at Cornell University, the University of British Columbia and at colleges in Utah, Kansas and elsewhere.

Hill served as a member of the Carmel Planning Commission for two years. His term expired two years ago.

He and his wife of 30 years, Heather, have two children. Daughter Vicki works with her husband, Gary Koeppel, at the Coast Gallery in Big Sur. Their other daughter, Jane, "does everything" at the Carmel Rancho office of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

We make other money green with envy.

If there's one thing all economists agree on it's this: Money is happiest when it's safe, and when it's growing.

Which are exactly the conditions we provide at Northern California Savings.

Deposits are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which keeps them safe. And they keep growing, because in addition to our Regular Savings, we have all of the high yield Certificate Accounts. It depends only on how much you wish to save, and for how long.

$20,000, in six years, can become $31,838.63 when held in a 7.75% annual rate account with daily compounded interest left to accumulate.*

So if your money isn't earning quite that much, and you suspect it isn't entirely happy where it is, you know what to do.

Habitat

Often sea otters live alone.

Baby sea otters, called pups, are born in the winter of the year. The mother takes care of the pup, cleaning and nursing it.

Pups are born in the sea. This is because most sea otters stay in the water all their lives.

Rarely do California sea otters come onto the land.

(Editor's note: Carmel artist Ralph W. Cooke III, who illustrated the sea otter book, works as an illustrator at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. The author, Dr. Jack A. Graves, is a professor of education at Stanislaus State College. Their book, "What Is a California Sea Otter?," is published by Boxwood Press, Box 444, Pacific Grove. It retails for $3.50. Eating

It is fun to watch a sea otter eat. It is on its back most of the time, and so this is how it has its dinner.
Lying on its back, the sea otter uses its chest
as a table.

Sometimes it will crack open a hard clam shell by pounding it against a rock placed on its chest.

The pup bounces like a cork while waiting for its mother to come back. Sometimes it gets frightened and makes cries for her which sound much like those of a human infant.

Nearings to appear at Thunderbird

Helen and Scott Nearing, whose book Living the Good Life has become a classic among pioneers in the back-to-the-land movement, will autograph copies of their books at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel, Friday, Dec. 30, noon-2 p.m.

Dr. Nearing, now 94 years old, is still in excellent health. He and his wife live on a simple vegetarian diet, raising most of their own food on their Maine farm. They have just completed a brief lecture tour in India and will speak in Marin and Sonoma Counties as well as San Francisco during their annual speaking tour.

THE CAST of the Carmel Barnyard Theatre production of "The Fantasticks" will stage final performances of the musical Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at the theater. Each performance will be followed by the Barnyard Cabaret, with a special "Fantasticks Cabaret" scheduled New Year's Eve.

'Fantasticks' closes out New Year's Eve

The Fantasticks, the longest-running musical in stage history, will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 29-31, at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre, Highway 1 and Rio Rd. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

The closing performance on New Year's Eve will be followed by a special Fantasticks Cabaret cohosted by Bruce Tuthill and Barnyard producer Alan Gilbert. The special show will feature many of the Peninsula's favorite performers in dance and music from pop to musical comedy and even opera.

The Fantasticks is a modern-day fairy tale with little story line and a score by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt which includes such memorable songs as Soon It's Gonna Rain, Try to Remember and They Were You.

The production is directed, designed and choreographed by Fred Weiss, who teaches drama and dance at Monterey Peninsula College and at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre Workshop.

Starring in the production is Bruce Tuthill as El Gallo. Tuthill, who appeared in the Barnyard Theatre's productions of Oklahoma! and Company, is also the singing host of the after-show cabaret at the theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

For reservations or more information, phone 625-1228.

Opening of new play scheduled Saturday

From Broadway to Monterey, an original musical revue, will open on New Year's Eve at the Steinbeck Forum in the Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

Presented by the Wharf Theatre in Monterey, the show is created, staged and choreographed by Scott Salmon, who is the director of the opening show at the new MGM Grand Hotel in Reno.

Based on the history of musical comedy hits since 1888, From Broadway to Monterey is a fast moving show which includes many of the great songs from Broadway and original dances created by Salmon.

Included are such old-time favorites as Someday, Fascinating Rhythm, Summertime, Old Man River and Heat Wave.

The performance will be followed by a champagne roast New York strip buffet dinner and dancing to California.

The show will open for a regular run at the Wharf Theatre sometime in January.

For reservations or more information, phone 372-7367.

Tickets for the dinner-show are $25 per person. A limited number of show-only tickets will be available.

'Oliver' plays at Wharf Theatre

Oliver, the great hit musical about the adventures of a young orphan in London, is staged Friday-Sunday evenings at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. each evening.

Based on Charles Dickens's novel Oliver Twist, the musical revolves around the orphaned Oliver's changes of fortune while he searches for a home and love in the lower depths of London.

The play, with book, music and lyrics by Lionel Bart, contains such memorable songs as It's a Fine Life, Who Will Buy, Consider Yourself, Oom Pah

Pah, As Long as He Needs Me and Where Is Love.

The movie version of the smash hit-musical won five Academy Awards in 1968.

Theatergoers may also take advantage of a special dinner-show package offered by Walter Becker's Cellar Restaurant, 150 W. Franklin, Monterey, and the Wharf Theatre. A dinner-show price includes a five-course Italian dinner with wine at the Cellar and admission to the play. Dinner is served at 6:30 p.m. on all performance evenings.

For reservations for the dinner and show or for the show only, phone the Wharf Theatre box office, 372-7367.

The Fifth Annual Olio Revue is on stage at California's First Theatre, Scott and Pacific Sts., Monterey, Friday and Saturday evenings. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

An olio is an old-time "aftershow" that literally followed a full-length melodrama or drama. Olios are something like vaudeville or music hall entertainment, consisting of songs and lots of comedy as well as a variety of short skits.

For 10 months a year, members of the Troupers of the Gold Coast, the resident repertory company at the theater, stage an olio after each performance of a 19th-century melodrama. Then in

'Annual Olio Revue' in Monterey

December and January, they combine the "best of the olios" into the full-length Olio Revue.

The First Theatre is a registered State Historical Monument as well as an active playhouse. It was built in 1844 as a boarding house and saloon for sailors. Plays have been performed continuously in the theater since 1937.
